Sir Robin of Locksley Artisan Gin

We approached Hush Creative to assist us with the branding and packaging of our soon-to-launch bespoke gin. From my initial perspective, I was looking for a design team that could offer a high level of quality in all aspects of its design services.

From the start of the project, they were incredibly open minded, and were highly enthusiastic in their approach. They quickly created a range of cutting edge concepts which highlighted their creative flair, along with their versatility and fluency with relevant multimedia design tools.

Throughout the phases of the project, they kept me regularly apprised of development, whilst encouraging and respecting any added input that arose from my company's direction. Their pleasant manner and professional management style embraced my company's needs, and the open method of discourse allowed their design capabilities to flourish.

Their understanding and contacts within the packaging arena has been priceless, providing me with the labelling, bottle supplier and bottler helping to bring my product to market as quickly and as smoothly as possible.

The final pieces of branding deliver a corporate profile through visual representation that is beyond my expectation. As such, I am confident and delighted to recommend them.
